Water advisory ends for Snohomish County housing development

OLYMPIA — Residents of the Marbello housing development just north of Monroe no longer have to boil their drinking water. A health advisory issued Tuesday has ended because lab tests show the water meets safe drinking water standards.

The advisory was issued after a water main broke, causing an outage. The pressure loss could have allowed contaminated or untreated water to be drawn into the system. The advisory affected only the Marbello housing development, which is off Chain Lakes Road about one mile north of Monroe. About 290 people live there.

Customers who have questions about their water service may call Iliad Inc., which operates the water system, at 206-282-4200.
